AN effectual remedy on the human body, for that dreadful malady the bite of mad animals—it being the remedy that Dr. Stoy of Lebanon, of Pennsylvania, has effected for many cures with—A number of persons have been cured by Dr. Stoy and myself, that had violent symptoms of the hydrophobia, from one to two days raging. The cure can be effected as long as the constituent part of the blood is not separated; which will happen sooner or later, according to the state of body, or the effect of the bite. ## Continuation of Foreign Intelligence.

NINTH BULLETIN.

ELCHINGEN, Oct. 21.

"The Emperor has just issued the subjoined proclamation & decrees: "His Majesty has just sent off for Augsburg at noon this day an accurate list of the army which was shut up in Ulm. It consisted of 33,000 men to which number the 3000 wounded being added, the total amounts to 36,000. There were also found in the place, 60 pieces of artillery, with their carriages, and ammunition, and 50 stand of colours.

"Nothing can form a more striking contrast than the disposition of the French army, and that of the Austrian army. In the French army heroism is carried to the highest pitch; in the Austrian army dejection has reached its lowest level. The Austrian soldier is paid in paper money; he can remit nothing to his family, and he is ill treated. The French soldier thinks only of glory. A thousand traits might be particularized like the following: Bried, a private in the 76th, was about to have his thigh amputated—Life was almost extinguished—At the moment when the surgeon was preparing to operate, the soldier stopped him—"I know I shall not survive the operation," "but no matter! The loss of one man will not prevent the 76th from marching with their bayonets, and formed in three ranks, against the enemy."

"The Emperor had occasion to complain of nothing except the excessive ardour of the soldiers. Thus the 17th light infantry, which arrived before Ulm, rushed into the place; and thus, during the capitulation, the whole army was so anxious to storm it, that the Emperor was obliged to declare it as his positive intention that the place should not be stormed.

"The first column of the prisoner-art at Ulm has just begun its march for France. The following is a statement of the total of our prisoners, at least of those actually known to have been taken, with their present situations:—10,000 at Augsburg, 33,000 at Ulm, 12,000 at Donauwerth, and 12,000 already on their march to France.

"The Emperor in his proclamation, says, that we made 60,000 prisoners; it is probable that they exceed that number. He states the captured standards at 90; it is probable that these amount to a greater number.

"The Emperor addressed the Austrian Generals whom he sent for, as their army was filing past him, in the following terms: "Gentlemen, your master carries on an unjust war. I tell you plainly, I know not for what I am fighting; I know not what can be required of me. It is not in this army alone that my resources consist, though were this the case, still my army and myself would make a considerable progress.—But I shall appeal to the testimony of your own prisoners of war, who will especially pass through France; they will observe with their own eyes the spirit which animates my people, and with what eagerness they flock to my standards. This is the advantage of my nation, and my position. At a single word, 200,000 volunteers crowd to my standard, and in six weeks become good soldiers—whereas your recruits only march from compulsion, and do not become soldiers but after several years.

"I would give my brother the Emperor of Germany one further piece of advice—let him hasten to make peace. This is the moment to recollect that all Empires have an end—the idea that the end of the dynasty of the House of Lorraine may have arrived, should impress him with terror.

"I desire nothing upon the Continent. I want ships, colonies, & commerce; and it is as much your interest as mine that I should have them."

"M. Mack replied, that the Emperor of Germany had not wished for war, but was compelled to it by Russia. "If that be the case," said the Emperor, "then you are no longer a power."

"Most of the generals have confessed how disagreeable this war was to them, and how much they were affected to see a Russian army in their country. They condemned that blind system of politics, which would bring into the centre of Europe, a people accustomed to live in an uncultivated country, and who, as well as their forefathers, might take a fancy to settle in a milder climate.

"The Emperor has treated lieutenant general Klenau [whom he knew as commander of the regiment of Wurmler] with much civility, as also the lieutenant generals Giulay, Gotsche, Rics, and the Prince of Lichtenstein, &c. comforting them in their misfortunes, and telling them that war has its chances, and that though frequently conquerors, they might sometimes be conquered."

The Imperial Head Quarters at Elchingen, Oct. 21

"Soldiers of the Grand Army—In a fortnight we have finished a campaign—We have accomplished our purpose. We have expelled the troops of the House of Austria from Bavaria, and re-established our ally in the Sovereignty of his States. That army, which with equal ostentation and imprudence, had posted itself on our frontiers, is annihilated. But what does this signify to England? Her purpose is accomplished. We are no longer at Boulogne, and the amount of her subsidy will thereby be neither increased nor diminished.

"Of 100,000 men who composed that army, 60,000 are prisoners; they will go to take the place of our conscripts in the labours of our fields. Two hundred pieces of cannon (their whole park,) 90 stand of colours, and all their Generals are in our hands; there have not escaped of this army 15,000 men. Soldiers, I have announced to you a great battle; but, thanks to the bad combination of the enemy, I have been able to obtain the same success, without running any risk; and what is unexampled in the history of nations, so important a result has not diminished our force more than 1500 men.

"Soldiers, you owe this success to your unbounded confidence in your Emperor; to your patience in supporting fatigues and privations of every description, and to your singular intrepidity.

"But we will not stop here. You are impatient to commence a second campaign. We are about to make the Russian army, which the gold of England has transported from the extremities of the Universe, undergo the same fate.

"In this contest is more particularly implicated the honor of the infantry. It is this which will, a second time, decide the question, already resolved in Switzerland and Holland—whether the French infantry be the second or the first in Europe? Here there are no generals, in combatting whom I can have any glory to acquire. All my care shall be to obtain the victory with the least possible effusion of blood—my soldiers are my children.

Given at my Imperial Camp of Elchingen, 29th Vendemiaire, 14th year (21st Oct. 1805.)

NAPOLEON, EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH AND KING OF ITALY.

"Taking into consideration that the Grand Army has, by its courage and zeal, obtained results which were not expected but from a complete campaign; and being desirous of giving it a proof of our Imperial satisfaction, have decreed, and hereby decree as follow:

"Art. 1. The month of Vendemiaire, 14th year, shall be accounted as one campaign in favor of all the soldiers composing the Grand Army. This month shall be estimated in all the accounts relative to the valuation of pensions, and those which respect military services.

"2. Our Minister at War, and of the Public Treasury, are charged with execution of the present decree.

(Signed) Napoleon. Given at my Imperial Camp of Elchingen, October 21."

Napoleon, Emperor of the French & King of Italy.

We have decreed, and do hereby decree as follows:

Art. 1. Possession shall be forthwith taken of all the estates in Suabia belonging to the House of Austria.

2. The military contributions which shall be levied thereon, together with the produce of the ordinary contributions, shall be entirely appropriated to the army. All the magazines taken from the enemy, of all kinds of provisions excepted, shall likewise become its property. Every individual shall share in the contribution, in proportion to his rank.

3. All contributions levied by individuals, and all articles taken out of the enemy's magazines, shall be restored to the general mass: it being improper that any person should avail himself of the laws of war, to the prejudice of the general mass of the army.

4. There shall forthwith be appointed a Treasurer and Director General, who shall account monthly to the Military Council of administration, for the produce of the contributions levied, a statement of which, with its reparation, shall be printed.

5. The pay of the army shall be regularly advanced from the funds of our Imperial Treasury.

6. Our Minister of War is charged with the execution of the present decree.

(Signed) Napoleon.

Extract of a letter from Naples, dated August 13.

"Yesterday, at ten o'clock at night, the eruption of Vesuvius, of which the earthquake seemed to be the forerunner, took place. We were going to visit the crater, when the cries of the people, and a volume of flame, informed us that the volcano had opened. The lava precipitated itself in three seconds from the last peak of the mountain, and took a direction towards the valley situated between Torre del Greco and Torre del Annunziato, two towns on the sea coast beyond Portici, and 7 or 8 miles from Naples.

"We set off immediately to see this wonderful and tremendous phenomenon nearer. From the place of our departure, we saw the whole course of the lava, which extended already 2 miles from the crater, to the houses that join the two towns.—The fight was the most magnificently frightful that could be seen. I contemplated the cascades of flame pouring from the top of the mountain, and shuddered at seeing an immense torrent of fire ravage the finest fields, overthrow houses, and destroy in a few minutes, the hopes and resources of an hundred families.

"A line of fire marked the profile of the mountain; a cloud of smoke which seemed to send forth from time to time, flashes of lightning, hung over the scene, and the moon appeared to be pale. Nothing can adequately describe the grandeur of the scene, or give an accurate idea of the horror of it. As we approached the spot ravaged by this river of hell, ruined inhabitants having quitted their houses, desolate families trying to save their furniture and provisions, last and feeble resource—an immense crowd of curious persons, retreating step by step from the advancing lava, and testifying by extraordinary cries, their wonder, fear, and pity—the frightful bellowing of the mountain, the frequent explosions which burst from the bosom of the torrent, the crackling of the trees devoured by the flames, the noise of the walls falling, and the lugubrious sound of a bell, which the religious of the Camaldutes, isolated on a little hill, and surrounded by two torrents of fire, rang in their distresses—such are the details of the frightful scene to which I was a witness.

"The moment we arrived, the lava was crossing the great road below Torre del Greco. To see it better, we got into a beautiful house on the road side—from the terraces, we saw the fire at no more than fifteen paces from us—in a minute we descended, and twenty minutes afterwards, there remained of the house but three large walls. I approached as near as the heat and flow of the current would permit me. I attempted at different times to burn the end of my handkerchief in it—I could only do it by trying it to my cane. The lava does not run in liquid waves; it resembles an immense quantity of coals on fire, which an invincible strength had heaped up and pushed on with violence. When it met with a wall, it collected to the height of seven or ten feet, burnt it, and overthrew it at once. I saw some walls get red hot, like iron, and melt, if I may be allowed the expression, into the lava. Its greatest speed, and on a horizontal road, I reckoned that the torrent travelled at the rate of 18 inches a minute. Its smell resembled that of iron red hot."

From the Palladium.

To Fortunatus Cosby.

Sir,

Upon application to the Editor of the Palladium, for the name of the author of two pieces signed "A Kentuckian," and originally published in that paper, I was informed that they were written by you. I therefore feel myself authorized to address you on this occasion, by your real name; & thus publicly to call upon you for those "satisfactory proofs," which in your publication of the 2d instant, you have pledged yourself to the public to produce, if required, in support of your assertions, "that I was one of General Hovey's associates at the time when I was appointed a member of the committee to whom was referred the Generals memorial." And that taking advantage of my official station, I bartered away the interests and property of my constituents, to promote the object of private speculation.

These charges have been exhibited against me by you—I have publickly denied them—bring forward, therefore, the proofs upon which you rest your accusations, and let a candid public decide whether or not I have been calumniated.

In producing proofs in support of the first of your charges, you will please to have particular regard to the time when I become an associate of Gen. Hovey, and interested in the project contemplated by his memorial; as upon that alone depends the criminality which you have imputed to my conduct.

In endeavouring to establish your second charge, you are at liberty to recur to the whole course of my services in the Virginia Legislature and in congress, during a period of more than twenty years, to produce a single instance in which "taking advantage of my official station, I bartered away the interests and property of my constituents, to promote the object of private speculation."

JOHN BROWN.

Frankfort, January 6th, 1805.

*Those printers who have published the pieces signed "A Kentuckian," will please to give this a place in their respective papers.

A TOWN MEETING.

OF the citizens of Lexington, is requested at the house of Mr. William Satterwhite, on Saturday next at four o'clock in the evening, to take into consideration the propriety of petitioning for a Branch of the Bank of the United States.

DEPARTED this life on the 11th instant, Mrs. Ann Payne, consort of Edward Payne Esq. near this town. She was in the 78th year of her age, and had been married 56 years.

The Mail due yesterday, had not arrived when this paper went to press. The repeated failures of the Mail on the route between this place and the city of Washington, has become of serious inconvenience to the citizens; and we do think the attention of the Post-master General ought to be directed to that subject.

The Bulletins of the Grand French army, still continue highly interesting. Their length precludes their insertion in this paper. The proclamations of Bonaparte announce the most important events that have taken place.

Commodore Preble, we learn, has been sent for by express, to repair to Washington; and is now on his journey thither.

The Circuit Court of the District of Columbia, [says the American Advertiser of Wednesday last,] has been engaged for the two last days, on the trial of John A. Burford, for the robbery and attempt to murder Mr. Peter, of the Bank of Columbia, in June last; and this morning the Jury brought in a verdict—NOT GUILTY. Nat. Int.

An appropriate MONUMENT is now nearly completed, by an eminent Italian, near Leghorn, to commemorate the gallantry and indefatigable worth of the young men of our Navy, who fell in the Tripolitan war in 1804.—To this Monument the Gentlemen of the Navy, from their scanty means, generously gave above 2000 dollars.

This elegant Monument is expected to arrive in a few days, to be placed on an eminence in the Navy Yard, in the city of Washington.

It is reported, that accounts have reached Washington city, which state, that Maj. LEWIS & his party of discovery, have been cut off by a body of Spaniards. This report [which we should regret to have confirmed,] was brought to this city by a passenger in the Southern Mail stage. Phil. Pap.

French papers to the 29th of October, received at Boston, say, "We are assured that a telegraphic dispatch announces, that Prince Ferdinand has been taken, with 400 soldiers who accompanied him."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.

Mr. Dawson, Chairman of the Committee appointed on those parts of the President's message which related to the better fortification of our ports, the building of more gun boats, and to the timber for the 74's, reported: that it was expedient, 1st, For the better security of our ports and harbours, to expend a sum not exceeding 150,000 dollars.

2d, The sum of 250,000 dollars for the building of gun boats; and 3d, The sum of 660,000 dollars for the building of Six Line of Battle Ships.

The report was referred to the committee of the whole on the state of the Union.

TENTH BULLETIN.

Augsburg, Oa. 22.—On the capitulation of general Werneck, near Nordlingen, Prince Ferdinand with a body of one thousand horse, and a portion of artillery, had taken to flight as he threw himself into the Prussian territory, and took the route by Gunvenhausen for Nuremberg, Prince Murat followed on his heels, and succeeded in overtaking him; which gave rise to a battle on the road between Furth and Nuremberg; in the night of the 21st. All the rest of the park of artillery, and all the baggage, without exception, were taken. The Chasseurs d'Cheval of the Imperial Guard covered themselves with glory; they overthrew every thing which opposed them; they charged Mack's regiment of Carabineers. The two regiments of Carabineers have sustained their reputation.

We are full of admiration when we consider the march of Prince Murat, from Albeck to Nuremberg. Although always fighting, he exceeded in speed the enemy, who were two days march before him.—The result of this prodigious activity was the taking of 1500 waggons, 50 pieces of cannon, 16,000 men, including the capitulations of gen. Werneck, and of a great number of colours. Eighteen generals have laid down their arms. Three were killed.

[Here follows an enumeration of the officers who distinguished themselves.]

On the 21st at night, Prince Murat slept at Nuremberg, where he rested the 22d.

The division of Wurtemberg is arrived at Geislingen.

The battalions of Chasseurs which had followed the enemy since its passage thro' Stuttgart, have gone to conduct to France a new column of 10,000 prisoners. The troops of Baden, 3 or 4 strong, are on their march to Augsburg.

The emperor has made a present to the Batavians of 20,000 Austrian fusils for the army and National Guards.

He has also made a present to the Elector of Wurtemberg of 6 pieces of Austrian cannon.

During the manoeuvre of Ulm, the Elector of Wurtemberg was, for a moment, apprehensive for his Electress and family, who then went to Heidelberg, and he disposed his troops to defend the heart of his States.

The Austrians are detested by all Germany, well convinced that, without France, Austria would treat them like its hereditary states.

No idea can be formed of the misery of the Austrian army—they are paid in notes, by which they lose forty per cent. Our soldiers pleasantly call the Austrians paper soldiers. They are without any credit.—The house of Austria could not any where borrow ten thousand francs. The Generals themselves have not seen a piece of gold for several years.

The English, when they heard of the invasion of Bavaria, made a little present to the emperor of Austria, which has not made him more rich; they have engaged to remit to him the 48 millions, which they had lent him during the last year. If this be an advantage to the House of Austria, it has already paid pretty dear for it.

BULLETIN OF THE ITALIAN ARMY.

Oa. 18th.—At four o'clock in the morning the General in Chief caused the bridge of the old Castle of Herona to be attacked. The wall which barricaded its middle, was thrown down by means of a petard. The two companies which the Austrians had made, were rendered practicable by the aid of planks and boards; and twenty four companies of Voltigeurs sprung from the other side of the river, from whence they were followed by the first division.

The enemy warmly defended the passage; they were driven back, and chased from all their positions, after a battle which lasted till 6 o'clock in the evening. They lost seven pieces of cannon, and eighteen covered waggons.

We took 14 or 1500 prisoners, and killed or wounded nearly an equal number; but a few combatants fell on our side.

We had about 300 slightly wounded. A bridge head was immediately constructed at the bridge head of the Old Castle.

RICHES & LEARNING.

SOME say that riches are better than learning.
For they will find payment
For victuals and raiment,
And keep a good fire in your kitchen a burning.

Now some say that learning is better than riches.
That when money has vanished,
And friendship is banished, Midst all your misfortune, still learning be-watches.

As for me, I have neither, and so I may chatter,
And bother the hearer,
Without being nearer,
Or knowing a particle more of the matter.

But I must observe one thing, which seems radier funny,
That those who have learning
Are so far from spinning,
That they like to pay court to them who have money.

WOODFORD ACADEMY.

THE trustees of this seminary inform the public, that having met at Woodford Court-house, on Saturday the 21st December, in order to arrange the necessary business of the institution; they elected Mr.
John Wood president of the Academy, and adopted the following plan of tuition to be pursued in future.

The branches of Education taught at the Academy of Woodford, to consist of the following:

1. English, writing, and the common rules of arithmetic.

2. The Greek, Latin and French languages.

3. Mathematics and natural philosophy.

The 1st, together with the junior classes of the 2d, will be under the charge of proper assistants to be elected, when the students are sufficiently numerous to require that aid.

In the 2d branch, the method pursued, will vary a little from that at present practised in other schools and seminaries. It is particularly recommended that youth should begin the Latin language at the age of six, or so soon as they are acquainted with the English alphabet, and the syllables of words, and to continue its study for six or eight years. The authors contemplated to be read after the rudiments, Cor-derius, and Caesar, are principally the poets, Ovid, Virgil, Horace, Terence, Lucretius, Ti-bullus and Juvenal. The practice of committing to memory select odes and passages; of scanning; and composing Latin verses, will be early and frequently attended to. The Greek language will be commenced in the fourth year of the Latin, and the authors to be read; Anacreon, Homer, Aristophanes and Sophocles.

The French will be taught towards the close of the studies of the Latin and Greek, immediately previous to the commencement of the mathematics.

In studying the mathematics, a full knowledge of Euclid, plane and spherical trigonometry, the elements of algebra, fluxions, and the conic sections, is recommended previous to the acquisition of any of the branches of natural philosophy; as they are intended to be taught principally by the medium of geometry and algebra.

The general art of design, or of drawing and painting, will be occasionally practiced as an amusement, and to relieve the mind from severe studies.

The knowledge of all religious, ethical, and speculative tenets, will be excluded from this seminary; as likewise the perusal of such authors as may tend to influence the mind of youth in those respects; but the strictest attention will be devoted to the moral department of the students, and to the cultivation of the virtuous and sympathetic passions; nor will any amusements be tolerated in play hours, but such as may have this tendency.

Although the above be the plan which is resolved in general to be adopted with the youth of the Woodford Academy; yet it will be frequently varied to suit the capacity, and intended professions of particular individuals; but not so as to occasion any derangement in the plan of the several classes.

The terms of tuition in future, will be five dollars per quarter, for those only studying English; six dollars for Greek and Latin students; seven and one half dollars after the commencement of the French language, or any of the branches of the mathematics and natural philosophy. Two dollars and one half additional, will be charged to those who obtain a knowledge of drawing or painting, or those branches connected with the art of design, as military or civil engineering, &c.

The fees of tuition are also required to be paid in advance, at the commencement of each quarter.

The healthy situation of the town of Versailles is sufficiently known, without the trustees urging any argument in its favor. It may however be proper to acquaint the public, that every necessary accommodation will be provided in the town, for the boarding of students, who live at a distance from their parents or friends.
